I teach 5th grade writing (and only writing-our students rotate and another teacher teaches reading) and started halfway through the school year. We just got a new writing "program" called SRSD for informational writing, and I really like it, but it's more of a method of writing than a paced program, so this is really helpful for determining how much time to spend on each part.

The #1 New York Times bestselling and Newbery Award-winning novel The One and Only Ivan is now a major motion picture streaming on Disney+. This unforgettable novel from renowned author Katherine Applegate celebrates the transformative power of unexpected friendship. Inspired by the true story of a captive gorilla known as Ivan, this illustrated book is told from the point of view of Ivan himself. Having spent twenty-seven years behind the glass walls of his enclosure in a shopping mall, Ivan has grown accustomed to humans watching him. He hardly ever thinks about his life in the jungle. Instead, Ivan occupies himself with television, his friends Stella and Bob, and painting. But when he meets Ruby, a baby elephant taken from the wild, he is forced to see their home, and his art, through new eyes. In the tradition of timeless stories like Charlotte's Web and Stuart Little, Katherine Applegate blends humor and poignancy to create an unforgettable story of friendship, art, and hope. The One and Only Ivan features first-person narrative; author's use of literary devices (personification, imagery); and story elements (plot, character development, perspective). Research question(s): How will teaching the use of a graphic organizer and a checklist help struggling fourth and fifth grade students improve their structure and content of summary writing after reading a news article? (1) Will using Step Up to Writing strategies that are organized into one graphic organizer help the structure of students' summaries to include a topic sentence, details, and a conclusion? (2) Will using a checklist, which include the questions: who, what, where, when, why, and how, improve students' ability to recognize whether their summaries include the most important information from the news article reading? (3) Will using Step Up to Writing strategies that are organized into one graphic organizer help students' ability to figure out a logical progression of ideas in their news article summaries? Research activities: Context: The study took place in combination class of fourth and fifth grade students at a public school in the Bay Area. all struggling with summarization. Although I had English language learners in my class, these five students who were not English language learners were having the most trouble with summarizing articles. Methods and Data: The whole-class intervention lasted six weeks, but three of the weeks were an interruption due to the Winter Break. Each day varied between 45 minutes to an hour and a half depending on students' needs. The students were expected to use a graphic organizer created using Step Up to Writing strategies and a checklist in order to help students with their article summaries. The data sets used were the grading of summaries based on a rubric done as a pre- and a post-intervention assessment, attitudinal data found through a survey also done as a pre- and a post-assessment, and in-the-midst notes written daily. Results: Comparisons of baseline data to outcome data suggested that using a graphic organizer and a checklist improved students' ability to write an article summary. My target students improved their average score from a 4.8 to a 9.5. The class average improved from 6.8 to 9.8 out of a total of 12 points. The graphic organizer was able to assist students in organizing their ideas in a logical progression, help students create a topic sentence, conclusion sentence, and indicate where details are expected in a paragraph. The checklist helped students pull out the most important information of the article to include in
