False Faith and Equestrian Games is the second book in a trilogy of political novels by Chase Baldewyn. Written before TrumpOs campaign and election, the trilogy provides insight into why Donald Trump would be elected. The novel reveals how right wing, billionaire plutocrats such as the novelOs protagonist, Rolf Lambert, have funded Christian churches to integrate Alt-right-like politics into a twisted version of Christianity to create religious zealot voters. Trump also gathered support from a power base of zealots created by plutocrats using similar tactics. The story focuses on how plutocrats brainwash people with fear and religion to gain political power. Lambert funds a church that preaches an extreme political ideology that convinces a veteran, Noe Haleakua, to bomb an abortion clinic.

Integrating extreme politics into a corrupted version of Islam is a similar brainwashing technique used by ISIS to recruit members to carry out violent attacks.

After finding a way to teach the ship's crew members to understand navigation, Nat, a self-taught mathematician and astronomer in eighteenth-century Salem, Massachusetts, writes down his explanations and compiles them into "The American Practical Navigator," also known as the "Sailors' Bible."

The second book in Suzanne Collins's phenomenal and worldwide bestselling Hunger Games trilogy.

We Pierce is the story of two brothers: one brother, Smith, goes to war. A true believer, he leads a tank company into battle in Iraq during the Gulf War. There he learns about the true nature of patriotism, camaraderie, modern warfare and, finally, the soldiers' secret that some things learned over there are better not brought back home. Meanwhile Sam, an aspiring writer, as much a rebel as his older brother is a natural leader, is busy protesting against the war in Times Square in New York and on the Capitol steps in Washington, D.C. But he questions the strength of his own beliefs, while losing his own battle with alcohol and narcotics. Both brothers are haunted by the depth of the sacrifice at home incurred by their family's commitment to honor and duty on battlefields abroad. As he did with his first novel, American by Blood, acclaimed novelist Andrew Huebner draws on his family's long experience with violence and military service and renders a haunting novel of war. From the desert of Iraq to the Lower East Side of New York, We Pierce is about fighting for what you believe in, no matter what the cost to yourself or your brother.

Following the U.S. surrender to the Japanese on the peninsula of Bataan in 1942, 76,000 American and Filipino POWs began the infamous Death March. This gripping narrative, told in unsparing but sympathetic detail, focuses intermittently on American POW Ben Steele, whose sketches adorn the book, and the hell of Japanese prison and labor camps that introduced these captives to the starvation, dehydration and murderous Japanese brutality that would become routine for the next three years.

"On November 28, 1921, the head of the Bahá'í Faith, 'Abdu'l-Bahá, passed away. For Bahá'ís, 'Abdu'l-Bahá was more than the leader of their religion. Shoghi Effendi wrote that 'Abdu'l-Bahá was "the Moon of the Central Orb of this most holy Dispensation" (Shoghi Effendi, The World Order of Bah á 'u'll á h, p. 134). The night of 'Abdu'I-Bah á 's ascension was a night of the waning moon, which illustrates the profound darkness that was felt by those who were present at the time of the passing of 'Abdu'I-Bah á . The darkness would be only temporary, for the passing of 'Abdu'I-Bah á marked the dramatic opening of the Formative Age, a period in the history of humanity that will witness the unfoldment of a religious cycle that will last half a million years (Shoghi Effendi, The World Order of Bah á 'u'll á h, pp. 101-102). There were six Western believers in Haifa on the night of the ascension of 'Abdu'I-Bah á : Mr. John Bosch and Mrs. Louise Stapfer Bosch from Geyserville, California; Dr. Florian Krug and Mrs. Grace Krug from New York, and Fraulein Johanna Hauff from Stuttgart. All of them were there as pilgrims. The only other Western believer present in Haifa was Mr. Curtis Kelsey from New York, who was in Haifa to install electrical power plants to light the shrines of the B á b and Bah á 'u'll á h. This book tells the story of these believers, how they became Bah á ' í s, the circumstances that led them to Haifa, and how their experience at the time of the ascension of 'Abdu'I-Bah á shaped their path of service to the Cause of God. The intent is to give the reader the feeling of being in the holy land, one hundred years ago, when the moon of 'Abdu'I-Bah á set over Haifa"--
